City of Chester, from New York, reports Danmark, from Copenhagen for New York waterlogged and abandoned in mid ocean-She was formerly a Belgian steamer and sailed under the name of Jan Breydel. NEW YORK, April 12 .- News of the bandonment in mid ocean of the steamer Danmark was received here by a cable to the maritime exchange. She is said to have had 650 passengers on board, mostly Scan-dinavians. Funck, Enye & Co., the agents dinavians. Funck, Enye & Co., the agents of the company here, say they place no reliance in the dispatch, but have cabled the agents in London and Copenhagen for further information.

The greatest excitement prevails in shipping circles over the loss of the Danmark. The Thingvalla line is probably the largest immigrant carrying line that plies between this port and Europe. The Danmark had on board when she left Christiansen for New York, March 26, 650 passengers, presumably all emigrants. Including the vessel's captain, R. M. Kundsen, the crew numbered forty men. The office of the agents of the steamer has been thronged with people all the morning anx-The cause of the strike is the same as that at Minneapolis—objection to a reduction of 25 per cent. in their wages, which has been ordered. Everything is quiet.

thronged with people all the morning anxiously enquiring for later news of the vessel.

The news spread rapidly down town and among the first callers at the office was Morris Stover, a young farmer from somewhere in Massachusetts, who got here last night to await the arrival of the steamer, on which his brother and sweetheart had taken passage. His grief was uncontrolable when Edye said that no contradictory dispatch had been received at noon.

The Danmark was formerly a freight steamer, the Jan Rydel, of the White Cross line. Last fall Funck, Edye & Co., who are also the agents of the latter line, had the vessel put in condition for passenger traffic and rechristened her the Danmark and transferred her to the Thingvalla fleet. This was the vessel's first trip from the other side under her new colors.

The New York agent of the Thingvalla line this afternoon said: "We have a cablegram to the effect that the Danmark left Christiansen March 25, on her first voyage, under a new flag and name. She had been completely overhauled, and it was thought by all she was the best of e.r fleet. There were on board at the time of her departure at least 710 people. Of these 650 were passengers. To manage and look after the comfort of this large number there must have been at least sixty in the crew, and probably the number may have reached 100 or perhaps 125. There are therefore to be accounted for the lives of 710 to 775 people. The Denmark was commanded by Cantain Knudsen, an old seaman, weil alleged was to enable Byrne to escape, was meant by Parnell for the ordinary purposes of the national league and that Parnell did not know Byrne was in peril of arrest. The court, Sir Charles said in concluding, was trying the history of the Irish revolution. He asked that fair and generous consideration be given. If prosperity was returning to Ireland, thanks be to God; but affairs were unhealthy in that country where the people considered the imprisoned members of the house of commons heroes and martyrs. Sir Charles declared he did not speak merely as an advocate of the accused members of the commons, but for the land of his birth, and he believed in the best interests of Excelent. iou or perhaps 125. There are therefore to be accounted for the lives of 710 to 775 people. The Denmark was commanded by Captain Knudsen, an old seaman, well known for his courage and presence of mind. He is not a man to abandon his ship to the mercies of the waves when there is one chance in an even thousand of getting her into port. She may have been disabled, but we are very nearly certain she has not been abandoned. Even if the Danmark had been abandoned she had sufficient means to accommodate all the passengers on board, if not all the crew. There were a great number of life-boats, enough for a great passenger list, and several new life-rafts of the latest pattern and improvements which could have accommodated the crew and officers, and some of the passengers, if there was not enough room in the life-boats for them."

could have accommodated the crew and officers, and some of the passengers, if there was not enough room in the life-boats for them."

Further particulars of the sighting of the Danmark by the Gity of Chester are to the effect that the Danmark was rapidly sinking when the Chester saw her. The Chester sighted her from a distance and was struck by the apparent absence of any life on board. She drew near and investigated and made sure no one was on board. She lay to several hours. The stern of the Danmaek were on a level with the sea and her bow far out of the water in the air. There was no visible signs of a collision and no wreckage, but the boats were all gone from the davits. There was nothing indicating haste and panic noticeable.

The following has been received by the Associated Press from representatives of the Thingvalla line: "As some of the comments on the reported loss of the Danish steamer Danmark express apprehension that this disaster may have been accompanied by loss of life, we beg leave to state for the benefit of all persons who have friends on board the ill-fated boat our belief to the contrary. When sighted by the City of Chester on Monday last the decks aft and the sails were in pieces, but the vessel was floating, and although the reporting steamer expressed the belief she would shortly founder, this did not occur during all the time that elapsed from the hour she was first sighted until the last. The Danmark is floating directly in the track of transatlantic steamers, and we believe the passengers and crew were taken off sometime, possibly as far back as a couple of days before the City of Chester sighted the wreck, since the Danmark, having left Christiansen March 25 should under ordinary circumstances have advanced considerably beyond the position she was found in. It the wrecked passengers and crew had not been picked up they would naturally, even if embarked in boats and on rafts, have remained in the neighborhood of the wreck, the presence of which would be much more likely to attract a smashed or otherwise incapacitated boats, whilst the steamer bore no signs whatever of human life. We confidently believe, therefore, that with the possible exception of single casualties, such as may occur during the transfer of many people from one vessel to-another, the passengers and crew of the Denmark are safe and will ere long be heard of as on board of one of the transatiantic steamers."

Judge Hubbell entered into an argument to convince the court the case presented was one which belonged to civil, not military jurisdiction, but the court decided it was a proper case to be decided by a court martial. Capt Armes, through his counsel, thereupon entered a general plea of not guilty.

Shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon a Fourth avenue car on its way back was surrounded by a huge and excited crowd. Finally some one set the brake on the rear platform and stopped it. At this juncture a squad of mounted police dashed out of an alley way from the central police station and rushed at full speed into the crowd with clubs drawn. Once in the center of the crowd they arrested three men and retreated. The crowd was constantly augmenting and was getting very violent. To make matters worse a number of express wagons filled with strikers drove in oner of the general land office made pubic to-day several letters as being of gen wagons filled with strikers drove in front of the cars and succeeded in making a complete blockade. The driver of the car finally unbooked his borses and went off amid the cheers of the lement in Oklahoma. Commissione Stockslager, in replying to a letter from O. M. The driver became disgusted and unhitching his horses drove off. The situation was getting serious. A great many stones had been thrown and excitement ran at fever heat. Three mounted police charged upon the crowd, throwing down several people and injuring a number. Several arrests were made this time and one man was unmercifully clubbed by six or seven policemen. The attempt to move the cars was then abandoned and the crowd became less demonstrative and gradually thinned out, leaving two cars on the track.

Another to Senator Ingalis from Commander Stockslager is as follows: "I have had the honor receive by reference from you and herewith return a letter addressed to you by G. T. Sommers, dated Oklahoma Station, I. T., the 24th. In reply I have to state that the act of March 2, 1889 to which Sommers refers, provides as he states that station, I. T., the 24th. In reply I have to state that the act of March 2, 1889, to which Sommers refers, provides as he states, that no one shall be permitted to enter or acquire any right to any of the Oklahoma lands to be disposed of thereunder who violates its provisions by entering upon and occupying the same prior to 12 o'clock, noon, April 22, the date fixed in the president's proclamation of March 22 for said lands to become open to settlement. The statutes makes no exception to this provision. I am inclined to think, however, that when a person was already within these lands at the date of approval of the act by proper authority, his presence there should not be regarded as a violation of this provision of the act. Primary jurisdiction to act upon applications to enter rests with the district land officers, and Sommers may present his application for entry to the land with proper proof of his allegations. Should they refuse to permit the entry he may appeal from this action."

Commissioner Stockslager to-day expressed the opinion that 100,000 persons would enter Oklahoma within a month after April 22. For these 100,000 people there are only about 10,000 homesteads. The inevitable result of this tremendous the accused members of the commons, but for the land of his birth, and he believed in the best interests of England. The inquiry, which was intended to be a curse, would be a blessing. It had been designed for the purpose of ruining one man, but had proved the means of his vindication.

In his peroration, which lasted half an hour, Sir Chas. Russell said: "In the opening hour of the case I said we represented the accused. The position is now reversed. The accused sits there," pointing with indignant scorn at Waiter and McDonaid, of the Times. "This inquiry will not only vindicate individuals, but will remove all misconception of the character, action and motives of the Irish people and their leaders. It will set earnest, honest minds to thinking and will hasten a true union and effect a true reconciliation. It will dispel the weighty cloud that has darkened the history of a noble race and dimmed the glory of a mighty empire."

At the conclusion of his address Justice Hannen in a note congratulated Russell on the brilliancy of his speech. Upon the conclusion of to-day's proceedings the court adjourned until April 30.

New York, April 12.—Thomas Walsh after April 22. For these 100 000 people there are only about 10,000 homesteads. The inevitable result of this tremendous influx, the commissioner thought, would be a great many contests and personal conflicts. A further result, he feared, would be the speeading of this immense surplus over the adjoining Indian lands, from which it would be difficult to dislodge them without much trouble, and possibly some bloodshed. If the commission appointed to treat with the Cherokees for the cessation of the Cherokee outlet could complete their labors within the next few months so the new tract might be opened to settlement before congress again meets, this might and probably would relieve the pressure. Otherwise he feared matters would become complicated and the quilibrium restored with difficulty.

The circular, he said, was a fact and the use made of the circular proved the government was the prosecution behind the Times. Referring to the use of battering rams in inforcing evictions in Donegal, Parnell protested against such cruelty and barbarity. Balfour ignored the question regarding the secret circular. Regarding the battering rams he held it was necessary to use them. Sir Wim. Vernon Harcourt described the policy of Balfour as one of extermination. Goschen declared the Parnellites were responsible for that.
